6. HOMEOPATHY vs. ALLOPATHY

CROTON TIG.: When the allopaths, in any case where they considered an operation of the bowels imperative, had exhausted all other resources, Croton tiglium was their "biggest gun for the last broadside." In other words, this is a most violent cathartic. Now if similia, etc., is not true, Croton tig. ought utterly to fail to cure diarrhea; but it is true, and not withstanding this remedy has proved its truth over and over again the allopaths deny and reject homeopathy.

Dr. E.B. Nash

IPECACUANHA: (Loose prescribing) I have cured many cases of fever and ague by the first prescription, thus saving myself a good deal of unnecessary seeking and comparing. Whatever may be said in condemnation of this loose prescribing, it is certainly preferable to the inevitable Quinine prescription of the old school, and some self-styled homeopaths, for the reason that it will cure more cases than Quinine, and do infinitely less harm. Ipecac, can cure more cases than quinine, but both can cure the case to which they are homeopathic, and that in the potentized form of the drug. We have such clear-cut indications for the use of many remedies that we need not fail once where the allopaths do twenty times, with their indiscriminate Quinine treatment.

Dr. Jahr

OPIUM: This is the reason why the homeopath can make his sleepless patient sleep a natural sleep with Opium in the little dose, while the allopath forces his patient into a stupor (not a sleep) with his big dose. The one is curative, the other poisonous.

PLATINUM MET.: I was led by it to prescribe the remedy in a very obstinate case of insanity which had resisted the skill of several allopathic physicians of note, and they had finally decided that the case must be sent to the insane asylum. The parents, however, who were quite wealthy, could not consent to that, and were induced to try homeopathy. I gave her Platina on the strength of this mental indication, which was very prominent, coupled with another prominent symptom, which also appears under this remedy, viz., "physical symptoms disappear when mental symptoms appear," and vice versa. This physical symptom was a pain in the whole length of the spine. This was the symptom alternating with the mental one. It was one of the most brilliant cures I ever saw. Improvement began the first day and never flagged, and she remained well now 15 years, with never a sign of return.
