Homeopathy in the Curing of Acne and Related Illness

Introduction

This book describes certain skin diseases including acne vulgaris (common acne), and acne rosacea and the usual forms of allopathic (traditional medicine) treatments. More to the point however, it also guides the patient in the homeopathic (alternate form of holistic internal medicine) methods of getting and staying well.

These two schools of medical thought differ greatly in their regard for skin symptoms and other disease. To the traditional doctor skin diseases represent symptoms that should be suppressed, usually with topical preparations. To the homeopath they are welcome evidence that the body is ridding itself of unwanted toxins, and the right remedy will cure the skin problems by helping the body cleanse itself.

Hering's Law

Dr. Constantine Hering, one of the great American homeopathic physicians, discovered Hering's Law of Cure that states that in a true cure, the body gets well:

- from the inside out,
- from the top down,
- from the more vital to the less vital organ, and
- in the reverse order to which the symptoms appeared.

In this manner, the patient and physician can conclude that the patient is being cured and that the symptoms are not merely being suppressed.

Calcarea phosphorica there could be no blood coagulation. It assists the action of the other essential tissue salts and hastens the action of them as homeopathic remedies. It promotes healthy cellular activity and restores tone to weakened organs and tissues. Calcarea phosphorica contributes to the formation of bone and teeth.

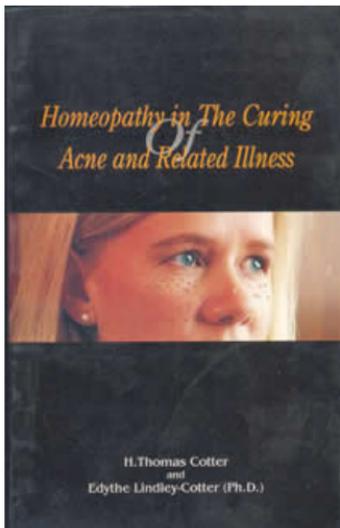

It is an important remedy for children since it aids growth and normal development and should be given in cases of backwardness; particularly where there is bone weakness or recurring tooth troubles.

This is one of the greatest remedies for restoring health after a lingering disease. As a supplement to the diet give this remedy in 3X potency four times a day. As the condition improves increase the potency to 6X, then 12X, then 30, reducing the frequency at each step until the patient is well. As with all homeopathic remedies, discontinue when any aggravation of symptoms set in (which shows that the body is responding to the remedy and should be allowed to exhaust the reaction).

In Alcoholics

Antimonium crudum; Chronic dermatitis with upset stomachs. Pimples, small blister like formations, and pus under the skin or in the lymph nodes. Sensitive to cold bathing. Thick, hard, honey-colored scabs. Hives, rash; measles-like eruption. Itching when warm in bed. Dry skin. Warts. Dry gangrene. Scaly, eruptions of pus, with burning and itching, worse at night. This patient feels better in the open air and during rest. They feel worse in the evening, from heat, acids, wine, water, and washing. Their condition worsens from wet poultices. Use 3X to 6X.

Baryta carb; the face is pale, puffed, and has a sensation as if there were cobwebs on it. The upper lip is swollen.
