Argentum Nitricum

Incoordination, lack of balance, convulsions, restlessness, trembling, weakness; intolerance to heat, craving for fresh air; ulcerations. Tongue furred with clean edges, or prominent papillae, red painful tip; white, yellow-white coating, dry. Pulse intermittent and irregular. TCM: Yang, Wind, Fire, Dry but this can be because of the burning Fire; note that the clean edges show the liver is not much concerned, but the central fur points towards digestive problems, Spleen and Stomach, the favourite taste of Spleen is Sweet and we know the sugar craving of this remedy.

Arnica

Bruising, haemorrhage, ecchymosis, sepsis; prostration, tiredness, lassitude, sluggishness. Tongue dry, almost black; can be coated white or yellow, or have a red or brown strip in the middle of the tongue. Pulse is hurried, feeble, fluttering and quick. TCM: Stasis of Blood associated to Qi Deficiency.

Arsenicum Album

Debility, exhaustion, irritable weakness, restlessness, worse at night; burning pains, major thirst; weakness, emaciation, prostration. Tongue dry, clean and red or trembling, stiff, brown, black; ulcerations, aphthae; edges can be red or furry. Pulse fast, quick, small, weak, thread-like, can be imperceptible. TCM: Extreme Fire that has burned the liquids, Deficit of Yin with False Yang, Dry from lack of fluids; note the edges of the tongue and the correlation with the liver pathology of this remedy.

Aurum Metallicum

Destructive and sclerotic remedy; disturbed circulation, venous congestion, known heart remedy with vascular fullness; sensitive to cold air but craving for open air. Sensation of emptiness and weakness of the whole body. Tongue trembling, dry, coated, with ulcers, warts, not moving. Pulse rapid, feeble, irregular, weak and small. TCM: Deficit of Yin, Blood and Qi.

Baryta Carbonica

Degenerative, paralytic remedy; sleepy and weary; emaciation with bloated red face and swollen abdomen. Tongue, weak, paralysed, hard, tip with vesicles or cracked and sore. Pulse full and hard. TCM: Yin Deficiency with False Yang emerging; the False Yang accounts for the pulse whereas the tip of the tongue indicates one of the major targets of this remedy, the cardiovascular system.

Belladonna

Violent, sudden, furious, hot, red skin, excitation, hyperesthesia, delirium, convulsive movements; burning heat, bright redness, dryness, fullness, congestion; bleeding. Tongue red on the edges, strawberry tongue, red, hot swollen, red streak in the middle. Pulse rapid, full, frequent, accelerated, hard, tense but at times small, soft, thready, irregular. TCM: Yang, Fire at its maximum, Wind, Excess Blood.

Berberis Vulgaris

Rapid change of place and character of symptoms. Wandering, radiating pains. Tongue slimy and furred. Pulse slow and weak or full hard and rapid. TCM: Wind, Humidity.

Bryonia

Dryness of mucous membranes, thirst and dry stool, but effusion in synovial, pleura, peritoneum, _ Tongue coated yellow, dark brown or white in digestive problems. Pulse full and quick. TCM: obviously

Dry and Hot but there is an imbalance in the JinXue, in the fluids are they disappear in one place but accumulate in another.

Calcarea Carbonica

Increased mucous secretions, takes cold easily, fat, large, pale skin; fat, fair, flabby, perspiring and cold; easy perspiration; tooth and bone problems. Tongue dry, white or clean, red, pointed, or cracked and fissured. Pulse full and accelerated, tremulous. TCM: Cold and Humid, Yin remedy with deficit in Qi and/or Yang. Note that the deficit of Qi is marked by the easy perspiration (Qi does not contain the Fluids) and the pointed tongue.

Causticum

Paralysis and deformations, weakness; burning, trembling. Tongue coated white on sides, red in the middle. Pulse "excited" (whatever that means). TCM: Dry, Wind, Fluids congealed into Phlegm.

Chamomilla

Sensitive, irritable, thirsty, hot and numb. Paroxysm, restlessness, irritability (but can be prostrated). Convulsions, twitching. Tongue coated white at the sides, red in the middle or completely white with islands of red/pink. Pulse small, tense, rapid, unequal (full then weak). TCM: Hot/Fire Dry Wind .

Chelidonium

Known liver remedy. Heavy, stiff, sore, paralysed, broken feeling, aggravated by motion. Indolence, prostration, sleepiness. Tongue yellow with imprints of teeth, large and flabby; can be narrow and pointed; dry. Pulse is slow, small, quick or full and hard. TCM: Deficit in Qi, Deficit in Yang.

China

Debility from loss of fluids through discharged suppuration, diarrhoea, haemorrhage, etc.. .Tongue coated thick and dirty, black or yellow coating; cracks. Pulse small, hard, rapid and irregular. TCM: clearly Deficit of Fluids (JueXin) and Blood, followed by Deficit of Qi (no Blood to nourish it).

Coffea

Nervous agitation and restlessness; extreme sensitiveness, neuralgia, intolerance of pain; bad effects of sudden emotions; convulsions in children; sensation as if the body would burst, feeling of fullness and pressure; remedy of "over-". Tongue dry. Pulse full, frequent, irregular, can be small and weak. TCM: Hot/Fire Wind. Typical example of the influence of Emotions, best known for "Ailments from excess of Joy"nice convergence of TCM and Homeopathy.

Dulcamara

Effects of dampness; aggravated by damp cold; excessive secretions. Tongue swollen and dry (?). Pulse soft, full, slow, bounding, can be hard small and tense. TCM: Wet/Humidity Cold, despite the dry tongue (would expect a thick white coating at least...).

Fluoric Acid

Deep, destructive processes, destructiveness; pale, miserable, cachectic, broken down patients; feels too hot; increased physical ability with no fatigue; overheated system, hot blooded, nightly fevers, skin hot, desire to bathe in cold water. Tongue deeply and widely fissured with a large ulcer in the centre; tip and edges vivid red, yellow coating in the centre. Pulse small and frequent, accelerated during exercise. TCM: Extreme Heat/Fire, Extreme Yang due also to the consumption of the Yin fluids by the Fire.

Gelsemium

Motor paralysis, weakness, prostration, dizziness, drowsiness, dullness and trembling; tired feeling, mental apathy; aching, tiredness, heaviness, weakness, soreness, tremors and twitching; watery discharge from mucous membranes; burning and stinging pains. Tongue thick, coated, yellowish, trembling; edges red, centre white. Pulse soft, fluid, full and flowing but accelerates on motion; intermittent pulse. TCM: Humidity/Wet Fire/Heat.
