INTRODUCTION
The problem. Models and paradigms.

PART 1 – A CHRONIC DIS-EASE

Chapter 1 – The Challenge
A point of view. The broken marriage. Keeping the balance.

Chapter 2 – Evolution and struggle
The rise of scientific medicine. The contemporary struggle. The disease in medicine. The illness, the disease and the story. How doctors think. Scientia and caritas. The remodelling movement. Remodelling or metamorphosis?

Chapter 3 – Momentum for change
Fitness for purpose. Scientific medicine. What will ‘different’ look like? Signs and symptoms of change. What sort of model? The goal of the model. Unhappily preoccupied with health.

PART 2 – PERSPECTIVES

Prologue
‘Medical nemesis’? The paradox.

Chapter 4 – Medicine and society
Chapter 5 – Medicine and the individual

Neglect of the person. Reinstating the individual. The limits of personal competence. Autonomy. Medical hubris and individual responsibility.

Chapter 6 – Medicine and science

The scientific attitude. Screening. Normality and significance. The goal of science.

Chapter 7 – Medicine and healing

Medicine's responsibility for healing. Right relationship. Healing, treatment and cure.

Chapter 8 – The patient's perspective

Chapter 9 – Medicine in crisis?

PART 3 – MAINTAINING CAUSES

PART 5 – REGIME CHANGE

Prologue

Chapter 15 – Clinical practice

Appendix 15.1

Defining a ‘quality’ integrated therapy service for complementary therapies.

Appendix 15.2

Examples of health and self-care promotion from a complementary perspective.

Chapter 16 – Permutations of care

The process of care

Chapter 17 – Medicine, culture and society 371
The context of care

Chapter 18 – The problem with science 389
The context and process of care

Chapter 19 – Learning to do medicine 413
The context and process of care

Chapter 20 – Living till we die 449
The context, process and practice of care

CONCLUSION 461
The model, the jigsaw puzzle and the bigger picture. Uncertainty. The fixed point. Humble hubris and willingness to change. Realising the vision.
