CHAPTER I

PULMONARY TUBERCULOSIS

(Tubercular lungs which begin to decay)

Ars. A. 30-200. When emaciation is rapid ; cold sweat, restlessness and anxiety are present, Ars. A. responds well in tubercular condition.

Ars. iod. 3x (twice or thrice after meals)—I agree with what Carter Williams, Boericke, Clarke and Allen have said about the efficacy of Ars. iod. in pulmonary tuberculosis.

The leading symptoms, having been summed up are, profound prostration, advanced stage night sweat, hectic fever, dyspnoea, purulent expectoration, pain and cavity in the lungs. In short, it checks fever, diminishes cough, keeps up strength and increases appetite, such are its virtues.

Bacil. 200 or 30. It is an intercurrent remedy to pave path for other remedies to come in and do well, such changes it brings in patients who have a personal or family history of lung-affections.

Sometimes in non-tubercular diseases, like bronchitis with rattling in chest, it may be chronic, it has most favourable result.

CHAPTER II

PNEUMONIA

(Inflammation of the tissues of the lungs with fever, pain and respiratory difficulty)

Aeon. N. 3-6. Cuts short pneumonia and croupous pneumonia both caused by exposure to dry cold, but cures even pleurisy, ; if timely administered in initial stage. Fear, fever, thirst and restlessness are the symptoms.

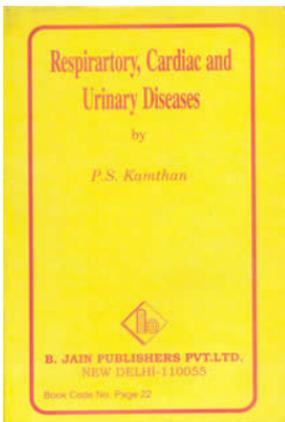

Dulc. 30. Bronchitis threatening pneumonia, caused by wetting or exposure to damp cold weather is averted easily by Dulc. dozes.

Ipec. 30. Pneumonia of infants and children is easily curable, if wheezing cough, oppressed breathing or breathlessness and nausea are present.

Kali C. 30. Pneumonia in infants and children is easily curable, if teasing cough is < from 3-4 A.M., caring little for other symptoms.

Bry. 30. It covers and cures pleuro-pnevmonia, croupous pneumonia and pneumonia as clinical experience goes to show as per following symptoms.

Feeling of thirst for cold water, stitching pain by lying on painful side and desire for quietness.
